A chance to attend the next Commonwealth Science Conference

Dear Dr Kerur,

Early career and established scientists in the Commonwealth are invited to apply for a limited number of funded delegate places at the 2017 Commonwealth Science Conference.

The conference, co-organised by the Royal Society and the National Research Foundation Singapore, will take place in Singapore from 13-16 June 2017. It aims to bring together scientists at postdoctoral level and above to showcase the best science from the Commonwealth.

The multidisciplinary programme includes plenary lectures from eminent scientists and sessions on topical issues such as new technologies and their social acceptance, emerging infectious diseases, sustainable cities, low carbon energy, and the future of the oceans.

This is a unique opportunity to meet and hear from world leading scientists, and discuss common challenges and opportunities to work together. I would therefore be very grateful if you could circulate this call to all your relevant contacts, to ensure that it reaches as wide a selection as possible of excellent scientists.

The application deadline is 7 June 2016. Click here to find out more about eligibility and how to apply, or visit the conference website.

Best wishes,

John Wood
Secretary General
